 - Research insights on the role of local communities in responding to natural disasters and preserving ecosystems.
 - On-the-ground perspectives, drawing on the example of how the Civil Protection system in Florence responds to natural disasters such as floods.
 - Policy recommendations to better value indigenous and local knowledge in disaster management and nature protection.
- Presentations from related EC-funded projects
- Open discussion and Q/A

Abstract

EU-funded research project ACCTING produces knowledge and innovations to advance behavioural change at individual, group, and societal levels, for an inclusive and equal European Green Deal. Based on insights developed in ACCTING research activities and experience from related projects and initiatives, this webinar will explore the vital role of local communities and indigenous knowledge in responding to natural disasters and preserving ecosystems.
