

Programme Climate Tech Morning Brief 3/06/25

What's next for Climate tech in Europe? – Morning Brief

Hosted in Brussels on the morning of 3 June at the BeClimate Hub, this curated event invites climate tech founders, policymakers, investors, and ecosystem leaders for a focused conversation on how European startups are accelerating the green transition.

The session will open with coffee and pastries, offering a chance for informal networking before the main programme begins.

The agenda features two (or more) inspiring speakers, including Kilian Kaminski, co-founder of Refurbed—Europe's leading online marketplace for refurbished electronics.

Refurbed has become a key player in the circular economy by offering consumers a sustainable, affordable alternative to buying new, while also pushing for more responsible consumption across the continent.

Following the talks, there will be time for discussion and exchange, offering participants an opportunity to engage directly with speakers and each other on how innovation and policy can better align to support the growth of Europe's climate tech sector.

The event aims to:

- Highlight the role of startups in delivering solutions in energy, mobility, and sustainable infrastructure
- Bridge the gap between entrepreneurs, policymakers, and investors
- Encourage dialogue on scaling green innovation in line with European climate goals

This is a compact, high-value morning event that blends inspiration with insight—perfectly timed to energise participants for the day ahead during EU Green Week.

Programme:

8:00: Welcome breakfast with coffee and pastries

8:15: Welcome by ESN + BeClimate

8:30: First speaker: Kilian Kaminski founder of Refurbed

9:00: Second Speaker and/or panel discussion

TBD 9:30: Open discussion and networking

10:00: End